From Recycled Plastic Fiber To Functional Fashionable Flooring

AREA RUG COMPANIES EXPAND AND ELEVATE OFFERINGS OF SUSTAINABLY-MADE STYLES

BY CECILE CORNAL, CONTRIBUTING EDITOR

Recycled plastics-made fibers are not new to the world of area rugs. For a while now, suppliers have been developing and promoting these products to promote not just for their sustainability attributes but also their inherent performance benefits—namely, extra softness and resistance to fading and staining—all of which are highly conducive to today's family- and pet-friendly lifestyles. What is new to this category of goods is the increasing relevance and role of area rugs crafted of recycled content and how more and more companies are working to expand their marketability, produce them more efficiently to be able to hit a more affordable price point at retail, and design them in a broader spectrum of colors and designs for more ubiquitous use.

Recognizing—and reveling—in this positive trend is the Sustainable Furnishings Council, which "has noted the encouragement of incorporating more ocean plastics organization's executive director. InDEPTH | NOTABLE WOMEN MAKING WAVES

NOTABLE WOMEN MAKING WAVES IN THE RUG INDUSTRY

BY JENNIFER SAMAD | CONTRIBUTING EDITOR

As the daughter of a rug wholesaler, I have vivid childhood memories visiting customers with my father, sitting on a stack of rugs while the men attended to business. These were rarely women present in these spaces—but it wasn't until I joined the industry years later that this struck me as odd.

Aside from traditional artisan jobs such as carding, spinning, and weaving, men have historically assumed most roles within the rug industry. From manufacturing and importing to wholesale and retail, it's safe to say that this is still the case today. Nonetheless, from my experience attending trade shows and working with rug dealers around the country, I've had the privilege of meeting many strong and interesting women who work hard and care deeply about rugs. Their vision, creativity and drive have spurred a refreshing shift towards creating a more dynamic and inclusive environment.

Thus, we're celebrating notable women who are making their mark on the rug industry, while inspiring the next generation in the process. From business owners to directors of sales and operations, each of these women share an affinity for exceptional rugs and offer their unique perspectives and struggles navigating a primarily male-dominated landscape.

OWNER AND MANAGING DIRECTOR
KNOTS RUGS - LONDON, UK

What has been your experience as a female leader in a predominantly male industry?

It's been a challenging but rewarding journey making beautiful hand-knotted rugs in a predominantly male industry. It took some time for us to establish the brand and to be taken seriously as a female led rug company. While showing at Domotex, we have had many occasions when rug buyers would visit our stand asking for the man that owned the company. They couldn't believe that a woman could be capable of owning and running her own rug company. They seemed to think that women only bought rugs, not made them. Thankfully, this has changed over the years as more women have come into the industry, but those attitudes are still out there. Juggling a young family while traveling and developing the business has also presented its own challenges but has made the success we have had all the more rewarding.

What aspect of your job gives you the most satisfaction?

The most satisfaction I have is when we see our new collections arrive for the first time and witness how the meticulous attention to detail, we have put into the designs is reflected in the amazing execution by our production teams in Nepal and India. We are so lucky to have such talented artisans that interpret our work and with whom we've developed such strong relationships over the years. It's also very rewarding knowing that we are contributing to keeping this ancient art of weaving alive.

What do you find most challenging about your job?

As we are a small company, juggling all the aspects of the business is a challenge while trying to stay ahead of the game in terms of innovation and design. You must wear many hats. Getting across the message that hand-knotted rugs are the best choice regarding sustainability in an even-competitive market. We are a fair-trade company and as partners of Label Step, we adhere to the standards they set. The market is somewhat saturated by lower priced products. Communicating that real sustainability lies in the longevity of the product, and the investment that involves, is central to what we are about as a company.

Who do you draw inspiration from?

We draw inspiration from everything around us—from fine art, nature and our organic environment to sights seen in our daily life and glimpses of patterns on a wall. Based in London, we are surrounded by visual information and inspiration. It's not unusual for the paint brushes to come out on a Saturday as we process what we have seen through the week. We collaborate with artists and designers and specialize in interpreting and recreating abstract art into high end rugs. We also work a lot with texture and materials to create interesting finishes full of rustic charm.

What career advice would you share with the next generation of women entering the industry?

Just go for it, don't hold back, always follow your dreams, and show the rug industry what you can do.

Please follow these guidelines when submitting print ads. Failure to do so may result in additional charges or incorrect reproduction of your ad. Please contact us if you have any questions regarding these requirements.

Design Services: Our in-house advertising agency can handle your advertising production needs. Costs vary depending on the complexity and size of ad. All production costs will be billed and are to be paid before the ad is run.

Digital File Formats: Press-ready PDF/x-1a with embedded fonts, CMYK colorspace; compression set to automatic/maximum; 300 dpi. Build pages to trim size with .125" (1/8") bleeds and crop marks. Spreads should be submitted as separate pdf files.

Applications: Our production department is Mac based. Supported applications in order of preference: Quark Xpress, Adobe Creative Cloud InDesign, Illustrator and PhotoShop, with support files/fonts included. Additional charges will apply to prepare or recreate ads for proper reproduction.

Preflight Files: We highly recommend preflighting to catch problems with files prior to submission. If you are using Quark Xpress, the built-in "Collect for Output" command assists in gathering your files.

Bleeds: Please adjust any bleeds to .125" (1/8") on all 4 sides.

Safety: All live matter must be 1/4" from trim on all sides.

Gutter Safety: 3/16" on each side (total 3/8").

Colorspace & Resolution: All colors/images should be in CMYK colorspace. Minimum resolution is 300 dpi at 100% of reproduction size. Other colorspace (i.e. RGB, indexed, etc) are acceptable but additional charges apply to convert to CMYK. Resulting color may need corrections, and is discouraged if color match is critical.

Image Formats/Compression: Contone images should be TIFF or EPS. LZW compression is recommended. JPEG compression is not acceptable. Fonts: Include ALL fonts (screen AND printer versions for Postscript Type 1) used in your document, including fonts used in placed EPS files or convert to outlines. Type 1 Postscript fonts are preferred.

Linking: NEVER embed images; always link them. This allows us to inspect & correct them if necessary. Please provide all linked images.

Trapping: Please DO NOT attempt to trap your files. Do not set any element to overprint.

Rich Blacks: Rich or bump blacks should not exceed 60% cyan, 40% magenta, 30% yellow, 100% Black.

Proofs: For 4-color ads please submit a contract proof with files. An additional charge of $95 per page applies to 4-color ads with no contract proof. For single color ads please submit a hard copy printout or at very least a PDF file.

Film Ads: RUG INSIDER Magazine is produced using direct-to-plate technology. All ads should be submitted as files and not film. Ads supplied in film format are subject to additional charges of $275 to convert them to a digital format.

File Submission: Electronic file submission is preferred.

Electronic File Submission: Email files of up to 10MB to: peter@ruginsider.com.

Files greater than 10MB should be submitted via file transfer using your preferred file sharing service or APP.

Include complete file description and email peter@ruginsider.com after file transfer to ensure receipt and proper file identification.

Files ideally should be compressed into a single file using Stuffit or Zip formats and named by company. Please contact peter@ruginsider.com with questions.
